

PATHFINDER

Choosing a job is a big decision, so why not decide based on things that are important to you? Pathfinder will help you identify your top three jobs using Aboriginal EnviroCareers' Select-A-Career tools. Simply follow the instructions below to see which path is for you.

Part 1: Finding My Direction

1. Rank the following decision factors based on their importance to you when selecting an EnviroCareer. Use 1 for the most important and three for the least important.

- A) Being able to contribute to the environmental interests and concerns you feel are important
- B) Being involved in and learning about the things you're interested in and like to do
- C) Being able to live where you live now or want to live in the future

2. Click on the Select-A-Career tool below that matches your number one decision factor from Step 1 above.

3. Select two choices that are the most important or interesting to you in the tool. For My Interests and School Subjects, record all of the interests you selected.

4. Record your selection(s) in the column beneath the Select-A-Career tool you're working in.

5. In the Related EnviroCareers column below, record the list of EnviroCareers that appear based on your selection(s). Record all jobs, especially if they appear more than once.

6. Repeat these steps for your #2 and #3 decision factors.
